Camera follow's Oliver down a long corridor.

INT. ICU ROOM - NIGHT

Oliver sits as HAL lays in a coma on a ventilator. The room is dark, Oliver uses a flashlight to quietly read to his father.

INT. ICU ROOM - DAY

QUICK CUTS. A nurse opens the shades. A DOCTOR and two nurses stand over Hal, everyone's nervous. Hal is struggling with all the tubes down his throat. Oliver is trying to help him breathe, talking into his ear.

Oliver is ushered out of the room. The nurse draws the curtain.

MOMENTS LATER: Oliver sits with Hal, now off the ventilator but still very weak and disoriented. Oliver coaches his breathing.

OLIVER
Calm. Calm, calm breaths.

Hal coughs.

INT. ICU ROOM

It's the middle of the night, Hal is connected to many I.V.s in both arms, still disoriented, he's tangled up in the tubes, trying to pull them out of his arms. He wakes up Oliver.

HAL
Oliver! Please help me with all these ropes.

Oliver rushes and helps him.

OLIVER
Pop, Pop, stop -- you're gonna hurt yourself.

A NURSE quickly enters and helps hold down his arms.

The nurse smiles, embarrassed, and continues with her job.

OLIVER

She's a great nurse in the hospital, we don't really know her,
you're very high on drugs.

HAL

You always have some very good reason, haven't you?

OLIVER

No, Pop, I just don't want to be like you and mom.
(aside to the nurse)
Thank you...

OLIVER (CONT'D)

Go have your own experiences with your own people. I'll be right here...

Arthur stays by Oliver's side.

OLIVER (CONT'D)

I'm a human. I'm not a dog. And you're a Jack Russell, that's a breed. Your personality was created by this guy John Russell, a hunting enthusiast, in the 1800s. And he bred your ancestors to have stamina and courage for the hunt. You think you're just you, and you want to chase the foxes, but other people planted that in you years ago.

OLIVER

HAL

Oh, yeah?

Hal continues to direct the light across the room, we follow the circle of light as it moves across a wall landing on a painting.

HAL

Oh, who did that painting?

OLIVER

Well, I don't know. Its just a painting on the wall.

Hal continues exploring, Oliver's enjoying his father's curiosity, he lands on some photos displayed on the table.

HAL

A--, and these?

OLIVER

They're just photos, Pop.

HAL

But how do they relate to the exhibit?

OLIVER

They're just personal photos. They're not art.

Hal slowly moves the flashlight up the wall, across the ceiling to a strange assortment of fire detectors, sprinklers, sensors, all laid out against the acoustic tile ceiling. Hal points up. Oliver looks for a beat, then...

OLIVER

Uh, well that's the water sprinkler thing.

HAL

Well, its beautiful.

OLIVER

What is?

HAL

Putting the Japanese gardens there. It's just beautiful.

Oliver looks from the ceiling to the rock garden book. The ceiling and the gardens look the same. Oliver is moved by Hal's confusion. ANDY, 45-years-old, physical, boyish, storms into the room.

ANDY

Hal.

HAL

Andy!

Andy gets on the bed opposite Oliver. He gives Hal a big kiss on the lips. Hal glows. Oliver backs away slowly. Andy picks up Hal's hand, turns it palm up and presses his face into it.

ANDY

I brought something for you.

Oliver watches from outside the room as Andy excitedly pulls a portable tape player out of his bag.

ANDY

We made a recording for you.

HAL

Oh, God.

Andy pushes play, on the recording we hear Andy's voice:

ANDY ON TAPE

This is for our friend Hal Fields.
Hal. We love you.

We hear voices HOOTING, and then large FIREWORKS, LAUGHTER and CLAPPING.

INT. OLIVER'S OFFICE - LATER

Elliott and Shauna let themselves in. Elliot grabs a stool

ELLIOTT
Hi Liz.

Oliver continues to draw, as Shauna and Elliott try to get his attention.

ELLIOTT
Oliver?

OLIVER
Yeah?

ELLIOTT
The pen is not your friend. The paper is not your friend. The party is your friend. We're your friends. Your friends are your friends.

INT. OLIVER'S LIVING ROOM

Elliot is now dressed as a cop and Shauna as a large chicken, they are dancing with no music as Oliver sits on a couch depressed dressed as Sigmund Freud, complete with wig-beard-glasses-pipe.

SHAUNA
I got the skills... he's got the

ELLIOTT
I got the moves... you've got the skills...

INT. OLIVER'S FRONT DOOR

Oliver, Elliott, and Shauna are leaving. Arthur can't believe he's being left behind. It's actually the first time they will separate.

OLIVER

Arthur, you haven't been invited to this party. You're gonna stay and look after the house.

Oliver tentatively shuts the door, takes three steps, Arthur begins to howl. Oliver tries to ignore it, but stops again.

He looks back at the house and the howling.

CUT TO:

INT. OLIVER'S CAR - DRIVING

Arthur, victorious, sits in Elliot's lap in the front seat, while Oliver drives and Shauna is squeezed in back in her chicken outfit.

ELLIOTT

You remember when Oliver was funny? And he could actually, like, talk, in complete sentences?

SHAUNA

Funny? Funny? I don't think so Fun maybe, but not funny unless, like, serious is funny. Then he's' fucking hilarious.

Elliott and Oliver laugh.

SHAUNA

But, lovable. You are very lovable.

ELLIOTT

Yeah, very lovable.

INT. HOUSE PARTY - NIGHT

Oliver carries Arthur, they all enter a costume party, making their way through the crowd of people in all kinds of disguises, music blaring, Oliver slides into the less populated kitchen. A woman rushes up to Oliver, surprised to see he has a dog.

FEMALE PARTIER

So cute, does he do tricks?

PARTIER

No? Arthur, SIT!

Arthur promptly sits down. Oliver's totally surprised.

PARTIER

He's so cute. Shake!

Arthur sticks out his paw. Oliver doesn't like seeing Arthur blindly perform.

PARTIER

Oh my god, he's so cute, I want him.

OLIVER

(in Freud accent)

Does it make you feel powerful to order my dog around? Maybe give you a sense of power?

PARTIER

Oh, you're being a therapist! Freud!

OLIVER

Thanks, yeah. Very good.

Oliver picks up Arthur and escapes the kitchen. The Rosenberg's are still watching.

LATER...

Oliver and Arthur sit in a chair next to a couch where a man dressed as a witch, complete with green face and long black hair, is lying back as if in a traditional analysis session.

LONG-HAIRED MAN

Well, I didn't ask for this. Who would ask for this? This color. This nose. This cheek, this chin. You know, this is my life. This isn't a story. This isn't a joke...

Oliver is playing along, but he's really not emotionally ready for this party. He feels very far away.

OLIVER

Yeah.

OLIVER

The witch moves on.

Oliver sits with Arthur in his lap, alone, lost in all this joviality.

We see that the woman dressed as Julius Rosenberg is watching him.

Just as Oliver is about to get up, she plops herself down onto the couch, ready for her session.

OLIVER V.O.

Oh, I was just- I was gonna take a break, actually.

She pulls out a writing pad, oblivious. Oliver can tell she's not going to give it up.

OLIVER

(back in accent)

Well, I guess we should start with your mother.

The woman writes on her notepad and shows it to Oliver:
"Never had one."

OLIVER

Well then your father.

She mimes shooting herself in the head and dying.

OLIVER

I don't understand. You can't talk? Is it a mental problem? Do you need analysis?

She writes on her pad: "I have laryngitis"

OLIVER

That's a physical problem.

She smiles at him, looks at him a little too long, Oliver is more and more pulled in by her playfulness - she writes:
"Why are you at a party if you're sad?"

CU on Oliver, surprised and impressed by her observation.

You?

She smiles and nods.

OLIVER

You, stay here, yeah?

Oliver moves to--

INT KITCHEN

Elliot and Shauna are deeply engaged in conversation with someone dressed as a pickle and someone dressed as much less colorful chicken.

ELLIOTT

No, its just not a natural color

SHAUNA

No.

ELLIOTT

(motioning to Shauna's costume)

And look, you see what happens when you free yourself from the cage, walk away from the factory.

SHAUNA

You just have no real color.
You're like--

Oliver slips past, hands Arthur to Elliot. He scoops ice from the bucket and starts filling two cups.

ELLIOTT

Uh-oh, one. Uh-oh, two.

ELLIOTT

OLIVER
Watch him OK?

Oliver begins to leave his drinks. We see his POV of the woman dressed as Julius Rosenberg waiting on the couch. Oliver slips into one of his memories...

Anna only shrugs. She writes more, and tosses the notepad on his lap. Oliver reads: "Can I see you again?"

He's very happy.

OLIVER
Yes.

located in your lower right lung.

CU on Hal taking this in.

DOCTOR LONG (CONT'D)

WE HEAR:

DR. LONG (O.S.) (CONT'D)

its location. We can start radiation treatments and see if you're strong enough for Chemo. You will be able to go home.

We cut back to Hal's face, stoically digesting the news.

DOCTOR LONG
Do you have any questions?

HAL
No. Thank you.

As the doctor leaves. Oliver takes his father's hand.

OLIVER
I'm sorry.

HAL
Well, let's not rush out and tell everyone.

OLIVER
Andy?

HAL
No need to get him up a tree.

Hal takes a moment and composes himself. In his eyes we can see that he knows there is an end to his life.

The nurse works her way between Andy and Hal to take his

                  NURSE
Hello, Mr. Fields.

Hello.

Andy feels interrupted, strangely hurt by the nurse. The nurse begins to take Hal's vital signs.

                  ANDY

                  NURSE
I'm Sophia.

Andy gets more and more upset.

                  ANDY
You know, I have the right to be

HAL
(knowing he stole them)
Andy, where did you get these?

INT. HOSPITAL ROOM NIGHT

JUMP CUTS: Oliver helps a group of Hal's gay friends and Andy get settled. They're jovial, they come with drinks and flowers, the room gets very full. Oliver hands out cups, offers wine, Andy lifts his paper cup and makes a toast.

ANDY
Guys, guys, this is to us. Cheers.

A NURSE suddenly enters.

STRICT NURSE
Drinking's not allowed in the room.

All the guys freeze.

HAL

Moans and complaints from the group.

HAL
No, no, no. She's a wonderful nurse. (he pauses a beat, then raises his cup again) Here's to health care.

Hal swigs back his wine. They all laugh, grab their cups and toast.

GEORGIA

OLIVER
Well, its just copying something someone did, like, 30 years ago in the Bronx.

ELLIOTT
Well yeah. I'm part of a tradition of civil disobedience, something bigger than myself.

Oliver can't believe Elliott said that.

EXT. NEW STREET

Elliott drives along-side Oliver who's walking with a spray paint can, terrified as he's never done this before. He tries to spray, nothing comes out.

OLIVER
How does it work?

ELLIOTT
Shake it, you have to shake it.

Oliver shakes it awkwardly, then sprays across the wall:

Oliver runs back to the car, exhilarated.

ELLIOTT

INT. ANNA'S HOTEL ROOM

Anna is sitting on the bed, gently petting Arthur.

ANNA
He's sweet. He misses your Dad.

She stops. Gets up, nervous, and walks past Oliver into the next room. Oliver follows her in. They pause uncomfortably, Anna suddenly leans in and kisses him. Before it goes to far...

OLIVER
Maybe we, we could, um, just talk for a second.

ANNA
Right.

They awkwardly break apart. Anna goes to a chair, Oliver follows. While nothing has really been expressed between the two, Anna seems to understand the problem.

ANNA
Well, my name is Anna. You're worried you can't trust me because you don't know who I am. I get it.
That makes sense to me.

She falters, looks at him vulnerably. Oliver abruptly kisses her. She pushes back. They pause. She traces his brow slowly with her index finger, the way she did their first night.

This music's old.

GEORGIA
It's black, black music is the deepest cause they suffered the most, them and the Jews.

Oliver plops down on the bed, listening to her.

GEORGIA
In my next life I'm gonna marry a good hot blooded Jew - someone full of emotion.

OLIVER
I'm Jewish right?

Georgia comes and sits with him, caresses his hair as she talks with him.

GEORGIA AT 50

INT. LACMA ART MUSEUM STEPS DAY

Oliver escorts Georgia up the large steps of the museum. The

INT. DAVID SMITH GALLERY LACMA DAY

Georgia and Oliver approach a David Smith sculpture. After staring at it's angels for a beat, Georgia begins to do an angular modern-dance-pantomime of the sculpture, imitating it's shapes with her body. Oliver locks up with embarrassment. A confused and concerned museum guard approaches.

SECURITY GUARD
Excuse me Mrs. Fields....

GEORGIA
What? You're not allowed to interact with the art?

SECURITY GUARD
It's just that...

OLIVER C'mon.

Still embarrassed, Oliver takes Georgia's hand and walks her

She throws the sweater back at him. Oliver looks around helplessly. He grabs a flower out of a vase and hands it to her.

OLIVER Camisole?

Anna laughs.

ANNA
You don't know what a camisole is?

OLIVER
I was brought up by these animals and they didn't like questions.

They're both smiling now.

OLIVER
They were very frowned upon. So I had to guess.

Anna takes this in.

ANNA
You can ask me anything.

OLIVER Anything?

believe in magic. It's like a war between them.

Oliver smiles. He moves away from the window.

OLIVER

How do you know so much about people?

ANNA

Oh. Well, you have to learn how to read their faces.

She climbs onto his lap, straddles him.

ANNA

For example... here is mad.

Anna passes her hand across her face, and she's "mad".

ANNA

Happy...

Her hand passes again and she's "happy".

ANNA

Sometimes its just nothing.

OLIVER

Oh yeah?

She points at her blank face.

ANNA

This is nothing... And they are good at looking one way and being another way.

Her playfulness is very meaningful to Oliver, he's in love.

EXT. FREEWAY PEDESTRIAN OVERPASS

They walk through a caged-in freeway overpass - Oliver is carrying Arthur while blindfolding Anna with his hands. Over this we hear the sounds of the quiet hotel room and an intimate conversation between them.

ANNA (V.O.)
You don't know me. I like that.

OLIVER (V.O.)
No, that's not true.

ANNA (V.O.)
Oh yeah?

OLIVER (V.O.)
Yeah, you have blonde hair that goes down to about here. You smoke in non-smoking rooms.

Oliver is still covering her eyes, leading her to a certain point, the busy sound of the freeway fading up...

OLIVER
Okay, open your eyes...

HIGH ANGLE on huge trucks and traffic racing just beneath Oliver and Anna's feet under the overpass. The trucks lay on their horns as they pass, scaring and thrilling them.

MOMENTS LATER: they walk alongside the LA river together, arm in arm, happy. The intimate conversation continues in voice over.

ANNA (V.O.)
Oh yeah? You drive on the sidewalk. You were raised by animals. Sometimes you look very alone, like you just got here.

They meet up with friends on the banks of the river.

OLIVER (V.O.)
Yeah, you see, you don't know me at all.

I hope this feeling lasts.

She was great.

HAL
Maybe you should take out a personal ad, where you explain your situation?

OLIVER
My situation?

Hal's friends hold up a hand-made "WELCOME HOME" sign in the living room. Oliver helps Hal walk to his crew, Andy at the center holding Arthur.

                          HAL
          Hey, you going?

                          ANDY
          Yeah, Michael's in town.

                          HAL
          Oh.  Right.

Andy waves goodbye and leaves.  Hal is sad but covering it up.  He catches Oliver watching.

                          OLIVER
          I thought he was your boyfriend?

                          HAL
          Well, at least I'm the number one boyfriend.

Hal grimaces in pain, doubles over.

                          OLIVER
          Pop.

                          HAL
          Oh, my stomach.

                          OLIVER
          Alright, come on.  Come on.

Oliver tries to clear the couch of books and dogs for Hal to sit down.

                          OLIVER
          Arthur, down.

                          HAL

Oliver grabs the oxygen tubes and puts them on Hal's face.

HAL

That's why I worry about you.

Hal looks at Oliver with love and concern.

He draws a man and a woman with the caption: "FIRST COUPLE TO MARRY FOR WRONG REASONS." He draws a spilled glass - "INVENTION OF ALCOHOL, ANCIENT EGYPT." He draws a man's face and torso: "FIRST GAY MAN ACCUSED OF BEING MENTALLY ILL." He draws a man labelled "PRESENT" having been crushed by a giant boulder labelled "PAST."

Oliver stops drawing, thinking of a conversation with his father. CUT TO: Hal on his couch (previous scene) talking to Oliver.

HAL

You want me to be with someone like me. I like Andy cause he's not like me... he's fun.

INT. ANNA'S HOTEL HALLWAY

Arthur runs down the hotel hallway, followed by Oliver, they come to a corner and Anna jumps out, scaring them, they laugh and continue on together.

INT. MELROSE BOOK STORE NIGHT

Oliver and Anna are in the overcrowded used book store we saw earlier. Oliver sees her down the aisle.

OLIVER
Hey, what did you get?

She puts the cover of Liv Ullman's "Changing" over her face - Ullman's face on the cover becomes Anna's.

OLIVER (CONT'D)
Liv Ullman. Very serious.

ANNA
And I found this crazy book.

She holds an old copy of THE JOY OF SEX in front of her face.

OLIVER
That's kind of a classic American thing.

Anna opens the book to a large drawing of a couple having sex.

ANNA
Maybe we can figure out some classic American things to do.

Oliver takes the book and flips through the pages.

OLIVER
Yeah, Like page 75?

ANNA
Uh-huh.

OLIVER
Or 75 all the way through, through 80.

LATER...

Oliver, Anna and Arthur sit at the end of an aisle looking at a book on "Old Hollywood". The book has a photo of Louise Brooks from the Twenties.

OLIVER

ANNA
All these actor stories end sad. I can tell you that already. It's not a good life.

Oliver closes the book, they share a look, and something vulnerable. Anna changes the mood, pulls out The Joy Of Sex, skips through the pages as she talks.

ANNA (CONT'D)
So. Now I want real Mexican food.

She stops on an illustration she likes.

ANNA (CONT'D)
And I want to try page... 46.

EXT. STREET TACO TRUCK - NIGHT

OLIVER
Yeah.

ANNA

ANNA
Why?

OLIVER
You're an actress and staying in that fancy hotel.

Anna can barely swallow her huge bite...

ANNA
I like this place.

INT. ANNA'S HOTEL ROOM

They lie on the bed, continuing their conversation, side by side, looking up at the ceiling together.

ANNA
I used to love hotels. But now I'm always in a new apartment or... in another hotel somewhere.

OLIVER
How do you keep hold of friends... or boyfriends?

ANNA
It makes it very easy to end up alone - to leave people.

OLIVER
You can stay in the same place and still find ways to leave people.

She reaches up with her hand, their fingers intertwine.

ANNA
You are like that? Its what you do?

Oliver nods yes. They know each other much better than either one knew.

So we are the same?

EXT. ELYSIAN PARK

Anna, Oliver and Arthur are walking in Elysian park, a view of downtown behind them. Oliver's looking at her face, she notices.

ANNA

What?

OLIVER

Nothing, you're pretty.

ANNA

No...

OLIVER

Yeah.

ANNA

Jewish girls are not pretty. They can be "interesting", or cute, but not pretty.

OLIVER

You're kidding right?

ANNA

That's what my mom told me.

OLIVER

She did not.

Anna laughs. As Anna continues to explain, the sound begins to fade down...

ANNA

No, you're right, this girl at school told me that. And I went home and my mom said, 'Anna, who told you that?

And Oliver's narration fades in over them walking...

GINSBERG'S READING CONTINUES OVER: Oliver flips through a mock-up he made for "The Sads" - it's all the happy faces from 1950's advertising that we saw in the last scene. One face per-panel.

LATER: the three members of "The Sads" and a RECORD COMPANY REP arrive. Jelly Roll Morton piano plays, we see but do not hear the meeting take place. The Sads look at the designs, which include many of the "History Of Sadness" drawings we have seen now in CD cover format - and no portraits of the band. It's clear that The Sads are not into Oliver's work.

Oliver alone.

INT. HAL'S LIVING ROOM - DAY

Oliver walks into Hal's living room, carrying his full tray of medication.

OLIVER
Here, Pop.

HAL
Oh, God.

OLIVER
I know, I know. Come on.

Hal begins taking his many pills, with each one he pings his glass with a teaspoon as he swallows. The room is cluttered with books. Oliver picks up a toppling pile of files from a paper-filled side table.

HAL
Hey, no, no, no. That's the Gay Pride Day stuff. Just leave those.

OLIVER Alright.

Oliver begins to neaten a messy pile of books on top of a chair.

HAL
And that's for gay book club. You better leave those too.

OLIVER
But what about this chair? Is it gay?

HAL
The chair's not gay. Obviously.

Hal gets up and walks to the kitchen, his oxygen cannon cord is attached to the pump behind him, stopping him short.

OLIVER

Pop, Pop, the cord won't go that far.

HAL

Oh, to hell with it.

Hal pulls off the oxygen and keeps walking, frail but determined. Andy enters with a large pilates ball.

HAL

Oh, hey what's that?

ANDY

Now that you're out of the hospital, you'll have to exercise, get you back into shape.

Oliver can't believe it.

HAL

That's a great idea.

ANDY

Okay, let's try it. I'll, I'll show you how.

Hal's still heading to the sink.

HAL

Yeah, later on, I'm gonna make myself some tea.

ANDY

Okay, I'll clean it up. It's a little - yech.

Andy walks out, Hal pours water into a kettle, in front of him on the window sill is the same vase from the first scene of the film, with some dead daisies in it.

HAL

Your mother's vase needs some flowers.

Oliver looks at them frustrated and uneasy...

INT. STAPLES - DAY

Oliver and Hal walk amongst all the products. Hal wears his portable oxygen and grabs different kinds of papers, dumping them in the basket Oliver holds.

OLIVER

Pop, you just got out of the hospital, you should take it easy.

you're... not well.

Hal, continues on, avoiding looking at Oliver.

HAL
You'll tell him, won't you?

Oliver's flabbergasted, but his dad's vulnerability is clear to him.

OLIVER Me?

HAL Please?

INT. HAL'S GUEST HOUSE - DAY

Andy's on an elliptical trainer, through a window we can see Oliver approaching with the weight of the world on his shoulders. Andy see's him, can immediately sense that something is wrong.

OLIVER
Hey.

Oliver approaches seriously, this makes Andy nervous, he stops his workout. Oliver tries to find his words.

ANDY
You know that I tried to have sex
with women?

OLIVER
Yeah?

ANDY
Yeah. I wanted you to know I tried, it just, it didn't work.

OLIVER
Hey, I don't have a problem with gay guys.

ANDY
Have you ever had sex with a man?

OLIVER
No.

ANDY

I heard that if a man hasn't had sex with another man, he's always afraid of gay men. You know, they're a threat.

Oliver's blown away by the logic.

OLIVER

I don't know Andy.

ANDY

I didn't want you to feel threatened, I don't want to have sex with you. What I do, most people wouldn't even call it sex.

Andy's relieved he got this off his chest, all tension is relieved for him, Oliver is just confused.

OLIVER

Okay, okay.

ANDY

Hey...

Andy gives Oliver a big sweaty hug. Oliver leaves.

INT. HAL'S KITCHEN - CONTINUOUS

Oliver enters as Hal's finishing the dishes.

OLIVER

I couldn't tell him.

HAL

That's okay.

OLIVER

No it's not. You can't hide this from him. He loves you.

HAL

For someone with so much relationship advice, you seem awfully alone.

Oliver, angry but at a loss for words, takes the flower vase and leaves, Arthur follows.

EXT. HAL'S HOUSE - CONTINUOUS

Oliver and Arthur exit a side door, go to a planter full of daisies and cuts some for his mother's vase. He looks back Arthur.

INT. ANNA'S HOTEL ROOM NIGHT

The three enter, the phone is ringing, Anna is staring at it with dread. Oliver looks at her, he finally moves to pick it up.

ANNA
Don't, don't.

It keeps ringing.

ANNA
It's my dad.

They both watch the phone as it rings and stops.

OLIVER
He's that bad?

She picks up the phone, and gestures for Oliver to pick up the line next to him.

ANNA (CONT'D)
I'll be my dad, you be me.

OLIVER
OK.

ANNA
(In a deep man's voice) Honey?

She gestures again, Oliver picks up the phone on his side of the bed. Anna turns away, he can only see her back across the bed. He turns away too.

OLIVER
Oui?

Anna continues to talk in a different voice.

ANNA
C'est toi, cheri?

ANNA

it.

OLIVER Doing what?

ANNA
Killing myself. You are the only one I can tell that to.

Oliver breaks role, turns around looks at her.

OLIVER
You should tell mom about that, not
me.

She just looks at him. Back into phone.

ANNA
You are my girl.

They hang up. She's embarrassed, she lightens the mood to get out of this intimacy.

ANNA
Now I have to kill you.

OLIVER
Just as it was going so well.

ANNA
I know. I'm sorry.

She tosses a pillow over his face and pretends to shoot him twice. She pulls the pillow back tentatively, he's smiling.

OLIVER
Hey Anna?

ANNA
Hey Oliver?

OLIVER
How do you feel about vandalism?

It's the last question she thought he'd ask. She's amused.

ELLIOTT

Oliver, don't write any of that serious stuff, okay? Just write something funny. Girls like funny.

EXT. ROOFTOP

The gang get to the top of the stairs, on to the roof where they can see the large blank billboard towering in front of them.

SHAUNA

You know what? Here, give me Arthur. We'll just stay here and get arrested. You know, that's good.

Oliver leaves Arthur with her, and Anna and Elliott and him head off to the billboard. They climb it's structure, it's high and a bit scary. On the top is a gang plank looking over the city. Anna is happy she came. Elliott goes to paint the back side of the billboard. Oliver meets up with Anna, over looking the city.

OLIVER

You okay?

ANNA

Yeah. I'm gonna stay here with my new friend (the handrail she holds).

OLIVER

Okay.

Oliver walks out and writes big letters across the billboard.

YOU MAKE ME LAUGH BUT IT'S NOT FUNNY.

He makes his way back. Anna's not where she was, he looks and finds her in the gangways between the two billboards with a view to downtown below her.

ANNA

OLIVER

OLIVER

I'm trying to impress you.

ANNA

(Gasps ironically) Really?

She walks to him and puts her hands around his head, somehow it's more intimate and vulnerable now.

ANNA

It's working.

They kiss.

MOMENTS LATER. They're at the bottom of the ladder. They all run back to their car.

INT. ANNA'S HOTEL - NIGHT

Oliver, Anna and Arthur walk down the hallway. Arthur bolts ahead suddenly, getting free of Oliver, he runs to and OLD MAN - wearing all black and looking just like Hal. Oliver runs up to stop Arthur.

OLIVER

Arthur, Arthur. I'm sorry.

We see the old man's face, it's not Hal, but it the resemblance hits Oliver too. The man is struggling with his hotel key card.

OLD MAN

Oh. No problem. No problem. What's with this card?

OLIVER (CONT'D)

Uh, do you mind?

Oliver swipes the man's key, the door opens.

OLD MAN

Thank you.

He disappears. Oliver looks overwhelmed by this ghost. Anna senses what's happened. She leads Oliver to their room.

HAL
It's not as bad as it sounds.

OLIVER
Pop. There is no stage 5.

HAL
That's not what it means.

OLIVER
What does it mean?

HAL
It just means it's been through 3 other stages.

Oliver doesn't know what to say, he looks through the door at all of Hal's friends -- happy, laughing, partying. He looks back at Hal, ready to fight him more, but for the first time we can see fear and doubt in Hal's face.

OLIVER

Eventually Jesus grew old. He could no longer walk far and he could no longer preach in a loud voice. One day he announced to his apostles that he was departing. The three disciples prayed with him, gave him water, bathed and fed him. After gasping for breath for several days, one morning, just as dawn came, Jesus passed away.

OLIVER
You re-wrote Jesus' death?

They all laugh.

HAL
It was so violent, we need new stories.

Oliver goes over and kisses Hal on the head.

OLIVER
If this is too much, then we should just stop.

Oliver gets up and starts to leave, Anna's surprised. She catches up with him puts her arms around him from behind.

ANNA
Wait, wait.

She forces him to stay there.

ANNA
I don't want to stop.

The phone in the next room keeps ringing. He awkwardly skates to it and unplugs it. He returns.

Oliver skates to her concerned.

ANNA

OLVIER (V.O.)

We didn't go to this war. We didn't have to hide to have sex. Our god fortune allowed us to feel a sadness that our parents didn't have time for and a happiness that I never saw with them.

NOW LIVE ACTION SHOT OF OLIVER AND ANNA TALKING AT NIGHT, LIVE ACTION SHOT OF OLIVER AND ANNA RUNNING BACKWARDS IN PRETEND SLOW MOTION. THEN ANNA'S EYES LOOKING INTO CAMERA, HER EAR, HER FEET, ANNA SAYING "I LOVE YOU".

OLIVER (V.O.)

We didn't know how we learned the stories in our heads but sometimes they stop running and I can really see Anna's eyes in 2003. Her ears. Her feet. This is what it looks like when she says, I love you, in 2003.

LIVE ACTION SHOT OF ANNA CRYING WITH OLIVER, LIVE ACTION SHOT OF OLIVER HUGGING HER AND ANNA SAYING SOMETHING WE CANNOT HEAR.

OLIVER (V.O.)

This is what it looks like when she cries. When she tells me there's always a new empty room waiting for her. They used to make her feel free. Now they make her feel the opposite of free.

He gives Hal another pill, another reluctant difficult swallow, another ping.

HAL
Don't be ridiculous.

Hal's hiding something, he doesn't look Oliver in the eyes when he asks...

HAL
Did you know, about me?

Oliver shakes his head no.

OLIVER
No, I just thought you and mom weren't in love.

HAL
We loved each other.

OLIVER
But you were gay that whole time.

HAL
I learned how not to be.

OLIVER
And mom? You wanted mom too right?

Frustrated and angry, Oliver takes the pill tray into the kitchen, leaving Hal behind.

HAL
Yes, stop that.

HAL
She proposed to me you know.

This draws Oliver back into the room.

HAL
I said - look I love you and we're great buddies but you know what I

Oliver's never heard this part of the story before.
